

Washhouse Court

One of the earliest parts of the Charterhouse, this would have been a bustling area servicing the monastery and then later the Tudor mansion – housing kitchens, bakery, workrooms and laundry.

The original cobbles, and extraordinary ancient buildings half of which are in monastic stone, and half in distinctive red and black Tudor brick, invite you to step back several centuries in this exceptionally lovely courtyard. This is a unique space for photoshoots, product launches, fashion events, filming and much more.
